

Call for Demo Proposals

Background and Motivation

The IUI demo session is intended to provide a forum to showcase innovative implementations, systems and technologies demonstrating new ideas about how people and computers could “intelligently” interact. If you can demonstrate smarter, easier to use, and more effective interfaces, we want to see it!

Submission Requirements for Demo Proposals

IUI 2010 welcomes your submission to the demo session. This year, in addition to regular submissions, we introduce a late-breaking submission to invite you to demonstrate very latest development of your work.

- Regular submission: the deadline is November 30, 2009. Descriptions of the demonstration should not exceed 2 pages in the standard SIGCHI publications format. If accepted, these 2 pages will be included in the conference proceedings.
- Late-breaking submission: the deadline is January 18, 2010. If accepted, your submission will be included in a USB stick for distribution during the conference.

For your convenience, we provide paper templates in Microsoft Word and LaTeX:

- Microsoft Word document template
- LaTeX class file

The submission should include:

1. A two-page paper that describes how the system is used to solve practically important problems. It may contain discussion of system implementation, deployment, or case studies of use in the field. References to previously published work (if possible), and/or sufficient details regarding the underlying technologies should be included.
2. An additional short informal description of the proposed demonstration (2-3 pages). Please describe what attendees will be able to see or do during your demo (e.g. screenshots), and itemize any equipment or facilities that you will bring for your system demonstration.

Regular Submission

Please log on <https://precisionconference.com/~sigchi> to make a submission. You can use an existing account if you already have one (e.g., for submitting IUI regular papers). Otherwise, as a first-time user, you will need to create an account first.

Once you log into the system, please select “new submissions” or “submissions in progress” tab at the top. Once you see a list of conferences, please select “IUI 2010 Demo Proposals”.

Late-breaking Submission

Please email your submission to demos2010@iuiconf.org with a subject title “IUI2010 Late Breaking Submission”.
